Worshipers flocking to holy statue that glows, moves — & GROWS!

WORSHIPERS gather at shrine containing the statue of the Virgin Mary (close-up, left) which is said to move and even grow.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Astonished worshipers gather each day in a tiny Canadian village to see a miraculous statue of the Virgin Mary — that moves, glows and sometimes even grows.

"We've seen it grow," said Anita Labbe, who owns a nearby cottage in St. Frederic, Quebec. "I have no doubts about it. We see the statue move every day."

The amazing statue was erected three years ago, but believers first noticed the incredible phenomena in June.

Dozens of townsfolk say they have seen the three-foot-tall statue move, grow to the size of a small girl or adult, and glow.

More than 500 believers recently celebrated the feast of Our Lady of the Rosary at the amazing Madonna replica.

Father Pierre-Paul Asselin, a Roman Catholic priest from Quebec City, said he hasn't actually seen the statue move.

"But just the fact that all these people come here every day tells me something wonderful and holy is happening here," he said.

During one recent appa, Father Asselin asked for a sign of the Virgin's presence. The next day a spring appeared behind a nearby cottage. Believers say the spot had been dry before.

Sprung spring pins kid to bed

Little Joanne Spark wasn't kidding when she told her parents she couldn't get out of bed to go to school — she was pinned to the mattress by a busted bedspring.

The bedspring had pierced the 11-year-old's back and an emergency squad had to slice open the mattress and hack through the bedspring to get her off the hook.

A mother's shocking confession:

My daughter was so ugly I wanted to kill her!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Six-year-old Holly Drew was so ugly when she was born that her mother wanted to kill the misshapen little girl to put her out of her misery.

But today — thanks to skilled surgeons in London, England — the little victim of a horrifying birth defect can look forward to a nearly normal life.

"I used to think to myself, 'Well, I've only got to put a pillow over her head and it will be all over,'" confessed the once-desperate mother of three Anne Drew.

"But now she's so beautiful — such a lovely girl."

Clearly Holly isn't lovely yet, but she's well on her way. Her rare condition, clover leaf syndrome, is a form of water on the brain which causes the head to swell into the shape of a clover leaf. The ears are low set and turned down, the nose is beaked, ankles and wrists are deformed, and hearing is impaired.

But now I think she's beautiful

HAPPY Holly has already had her nose reshaped and doctors will soon correct the bulging eyes caused by a birth defect.

Shortly after she was born, doctors drained the water from the little girl's skull to eliminate pressure on her brain. Then, in 10 operations, they reshaped her head, built a brow above her bulbous eyes and brought her upper jaw forward.

Recently the plastic surgeons constructed a new nose for Holly and now they are planning still another operation in which they will set her bulging eyes deeper into their sockets.

"Before that, I couldn't face taking her out," Anne, 42, admitted. "I just couldn't cope with people staring at her. I found it all a tremendous strain.

"But the new nose has made all the difference. Now Holly's quite happy to go to school. The other children still look at her, but she won't let them stop her doing what she wants to do.

"She has suffered a lot of pain in the past, now she seems to have forgotten all about it."

Anne says her courageous daughter is a bright, happy little girl who is thoroughly spoiled by her twin brother Mark, her younger brother Joe and her dad, Dirk.

The child has been such an inspiration that Anne has founded a special organization in her honor to help parents of children with deformities.

"Holly looks at herself in the mirror, but she never questions why she is different," Anne said. "And I'm sure by the time she has grown she will have overcome most of her problems.

"At first my feelings were that if her brain was severely damaged I would have preferred to let Holly die. But when we found out her brain was normal we decided to give her all the hope we could. There were times when I wondered if we had done the right thing.

"Now I know that we did. Holly is the best daughter we could ask for."

Pushy parents can cause kiddie burnout

Middle-class kids who are pushed to master studies in preschool don't do better than other youngsters when they reach the first grade — and often show signs of "burnout" at the tender age of 6!

That's the startling conclusion of a Temple University study of parents who place their youngsters in formal school programs and pressure them to excel.

At age 6, researchers found, these kids were more likely to have numbers and letters. But by age 8, they had lost their edge over other middle-class kids. They also had more anxiety about tests and overall nervousness, were less creative and had a more negative attitude toward school than their less-pressured peers.

Animal lovers are steaming over outrageous tests

700 cats shot — just to see how they die!

Animal lovers are outraged that researchers have killed 700 helpless cats for an Army study just to see how the pitiful creatures die.

. . . and it cost taxpayers $2 million!

By JACK ALEXANDER

And if that doesn't make your blood boil, here's more. The study that cost taxpayers $2.07 million — to find out what we've known for 100 years.

The kittycats bit the dust in a Louisiana State University lab as part of a U.S. Army study aimed at improving the recovery chances of head wound victims. After six years and $2.07 million in taxpayers' money, the researchers say they have made the "astonishing" discovery that cats stop breathing when they are shot in the head and can sometimes survive if they are promptly resuscitated.

That was the finding of project director Dr. Richard Carey of LSU in a recent research report issued to the Army.

Dr. Carey's finding "has long been a part of scientific knowledge," said critic Dr. Michael Rokoff, who is a neurosurgeon and professor at the University of California at Irvine.

"Respiratory arrest is one of the first things that happens in a serious injury. That's been known for years by paramedics. In a busy emergency room you see it all the time," said Dr. Rokoff.

In his experiments, Dr. Carey anesthetizes a cat, removes part of its skull and puts the animal in a machine that shoots a steel ball into its brain.

The purpose of the research is to find better treatments for head wounds and to return brain-wounded soldiers to some form of Army duty, said Dr. Carey.

Animal Peace, an animal rights group in New Orleans, has asked the General Accounting Office to look into the Army's contract with Dr. Carey, which extends through 1991.

You can help cancer kid Craig be the world's get-well card champ

Plucky cancer kid Craig Shergold has made a heart-tugging plea to readers of The NEWS — "Please help me become the person to receive the most get-well cards ever."

The courageous 10-year-old victim of a massive brain tumor is determined to get into the Guinness Book of World Records as the greatest "get-well card champ" of all time.

Craig, who lives in Carshalton, England, has received more than 200,000 cards from well-wishers throughout Great Britain. But he is still 800,000 cards short of beating the existing record of 1,000,000.

The dream of topping that record is what's helping Craig endure the daily agony of chemotherapy treatments since surgeons removed the tumor from his brain.

"I'm in tears nearly every day because so many people have shown how much they care by sending get-well cards," Craig's grateful mum Marion said. "People have been so wonderful."

While the response in Britain has been heartwarming, it's not nearly enough to set a new record. But if readers of The NEWS pitch in the brave boy's dream can come true. Send your cards to him at the address below. You'll need to talk to your postmaster about special overseas rates.

CYCLOPS SKULL FOUND

SINGLE hot-eyed eye socket in skull shocks Japanese scientists.

Japanese scientists claim to have found the skull of a Cyclops on an island in the South Pacific and there is strong evidence to suggest that the one-eyed creature didn't die until World War 2!

"The skull isn't a fraud. It belonged to a creature that was alive in the 1940s," archaeologist Isao Fujita explained to newsmen in Tokyo.

"It had a single, fist-sized eye in the middle of its head just like the Cyclopes that are described so vividly in Greek mythology," he continued.

"The skull itself is as big as a melon and probably belonged to a creature that was at least eight feet tall."

News that Dr. Fujita and a colleague, Isamu Nogami, were claiming to have found the strange skull sent some powerful shock waves through the scientific establishment around the world.

Some experts, like Swiss historian Stefan Canevi, said the Japanese report was "a despicable hoax and perversion of Greek myth."

But Drs. Nogami and Fujita presented a 300-page report and the skull itself at a Tokyo news conference to support their claims.

According to the report, the experts found the skull in a shallow grave on the island of Kadavu, about 60 miles south of Fiji in the South Pacific, on September 21.

They initially thought it was hundreds or even thousands of years old. But testing indicated that the Cyclops died between 1941 and 1944 — less than 50 years ago. The scientists searched for the creature's skeleton. But to date they haven't found a single bone.

"There is a single bullet hole in the base of the skull so the Cyclops was shot to death, probably by a soldier during World War 2," said Dr. Fujita. "We have no idea who buried the skull."

The discovery that the skull belonged to a Cyclops that was alive in modern times threatened to overshadow the fact that nobody was sure the creatures really existed — until now.

Dr. Elias Souris, a mythology expert from Athens, Greece, says the skull "will change the way we view the ancient myths forever."

"If Cyclopes existed then, there must be other aspects of the ancient myths that are true," said the expert.

"The discovery of this skull puts us on the threshold of a whole new area of research."

Wastebasket fire went out but it was too late!

Blind dad panics & drops 3 kids to their death

Four people died during a wastebasket fire when a blind father panicked and threw himself and his three young children out a window — from his sixth-story apartment!

Fire officials in Vigo, Spain, say the blaze was confined to a trash container in the kitchen of Manuel Torma's home and would in all likelihood have gone out by itself within just a few minutes.

"He was a devoted father and I think he just panicked when he smelled the smoke," said a neighbor, Maria Dunas Beltora.

"He must have wanted to save the children so badly that he lost his head and forgot where he was."

Dead in the tragic mishap were Torma, 33, and his children Miguel, 5, Pasqual, 3, and Lola, 2.

According to fire officials, the blaze started in Torma's home at about 7:30 a.m. The widowed father had been preparing breakfast and apparently dropped a lighted matchstick into the trash thinking he had blown it out.

"There were much marks on the kitchen wall indicating that the flames reached several feet at one point," said a spokesman for the Vigo fire department. "We believe Mr. Torma thought the whole kitchen was ablaze. Apparently he was terribly frightened.

"We believe he grabbed up his children — who were having breakfast in the kitchen — and threw them one by one out his living room window. Apparently he knew there was a roof overhang on the fifth floor of the apartment building and thought he and the kids would fall one story to that."

Unfortunately, the fifth-story overhang began several yards to the left of Torma's living room window, the fire official said. Instead of dropping one story to safety, the blind man and his family plunged six stories to their deaths.

HIVE OF HORRORS!

By CHUCK MOE

A couple had the shock of their lives when a four-foot wasp nest teeming with thousands of yellow jackets was found in their attic.

"It apparently had been growing up there for years and years," said harassed homeowner Harriet Morrissey of Lincoln, Nebr.

Couple's attic home to thousands of wasps

A repairman hired by Mrs. Morrissey and her husband, Rod, discovered the nest when he went up into their attic to check their air-conditioning ducts.

"He came down out of there right quick," said Mrs. Morrissey.

Exterminators had to zap the nest with five cans of "wasp freeze" and inject the hive with poison. Amazingly, no one was stung. When workmen removed the nest, it broke open, revealing countless larvae and many wasps dazed but still alive.

"I never heard of anything so gross," said Mrs. Morrissey.

The couple donated the nest to delighted University of Nebraska bug scientists, who put it on display.

Mrs. Morrissey plans to see the exhibit of her wasp nest but avoid her attic.

"Nothing will make me go up there," she declared.

Medical flip-flop! He became a woman in 1978 and now . . .

SEX SWAP DOC WANTS TO BE A MAN AGAIN!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Sex swap doc Janis Ashley used to be a male, but she became a woman back in 1978. Now she's decided she liked things better the way they were — and she's switching back to a man again!

"I was born male and I was raised male and I feel like that's the way I'll feel most content," said the flip-flop doc, who lives in Sedalia, Missouri. "I feel like I can be all of me as a male."

The 38-year-old pediatrician has announced she's decided to regain her manhood in the hope that advance warning will spare her young patients shock and confusion. She promises the switch will be a slow one, so the kids she cares for can get used to the idea.

"With my patients I'm going to be direct and honest," the transsexual said in an interview with her hometown newspaper, the Sedalia Democrat. "I'll answer their questions and emphasize to them that I'm still the same, but gradually I will begin to look more like their daddy than their mommy.

"I don't have any easy answers for all the questions. I am who I am. I'm not doing anything quickly. But I have a sense of faith — I just feel like it's right to do it now."

The divorced doc lived as a male until she was 35 years old and even married at one time. But after much soul-searching and a year and a half of hormone treatment and counseling, she underwent surgery to become a female.

But life as a woman was lonely for Dr. Ashley, whose friends abandoned her when she underwent her change in sex. She wants to be a man again so she can fall in love, marry and have a family.

"If I don't change, I'm faced with life without potential of being a male," said Dr. Ashley. "I love kids. I want a mate and a family."

Actually, Dr. Ashley already has a family — one 4-year-old son named Michael. Explaining to him what she's up to has been difficult, Dr. Ashley admitted.

"I tell Michael I am his mommy," she said, "and I will always be his mommy.

"But I am also his daddy. I am his mother, his parent — whatever you call it — that emotional attachment will be the same." Dr. Ashley says she's already begun taking male hormones, but hasn't made plans for an operation yet.

She figures it will take six months before she's a lot more to appearance and even longer for her to undergo the full course of surgery.

Although the switch back will be a major adjustment for her and her patients, Dr. Ashley says she doesn't regret having tried life as a female.

"At the time it seemed there was no other way," she said.

"I've learned something — albeit at a very high price."

BABY Jamie with his relieved mom, Tonia Croft.

Tumor in tot's mouth was a plastic screw!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Several doctors feared a lump in a baby's mouth might be a tumor until a dentist took a look — and discovered it was the head of a plastic screw.

Worried parents Paul and Tonia Croft had taken their year-old son, Jamie, to a doctor a month earlier when he stopped eating and suddenly cried out for no reason.

A doctor found a lump in the roof of Jamie's mouth, but didn't know what it was. At least a half dozen doctors at two hospitals in London, En gland, believed the lump was either a tumor or a bone.

At first I thought it was a piece of white chocolate, but I just couldn't budge it," said the frantic mom.

The parents finally took the tot to the Great Ormond Street Hospital, where a dental expert solved the mystery in a couple of minutes.

'I was shocked but relieved,' says his mom

The dentist poked around the roof of Jamie's mouth, and can popped the head of the plastic screw. The piece of plastic apparently had worked its way under the skin. No one knows how long it had been there.

"James screamed when the screw head popped out, but after a couple of minutes it didn't seem to bother him," said Tonia, 19.

"I was shocked but relieved to find the problem wasn't a tumor after all."

Barflies' latest treat: Juiced-up Jell-O jolts

The hottest new drink on the cocktail circuit these days is . . . Jell-O.

That's correct, quivering, shivering globs of Jell-O in a cup — laced with booze, of course.

"I just stumbled onto them on a trip to New York. Figured out how to make them and started selling them," said bar manager Cathy Morgan at the Dakota in Washington, D.C. "The reaction has been overwhelming. We can't keep up with the people who are buying them."

For $3 a cup, folks can order their Jell-O with vodka and triple sec. The Dakota offers four flavors on weekends and sells 500 to 600 Jell-O jolts a night.

"You put enough in it out of those little cups," said Miss Morgan of the Dakota in Washington. "It's like Indian ice — you don't eat that with a spoon either."

He fired Mustafa Fetah of Darbandikhan after finding his private bathroom a mess.

MICHAEL JACKSON WANTS TO BE DIANA ROSS!

Motown queen catches pop weirdo trying on her makeup

DINNER Michael Jackson thinks Diana Ross' makeup is magic.

BETTER LIGHT Diana told Michael to leave her cosmetics alone.

Wacky warbler Michael Jackson is so crazy about Diana Ross that he dreams of becoming her clone — and he even got caught trying on Diana's makeup in a bizarre bid to look just like the dazzling lady!

Author J. Randy Taraborrelli blows the lid off The Gloved One's secret obsession in the shocking new book Call Her Miss Ross (Birch Lane Press.)

Taraborrelli says dumbfounded Diana couldn't believe her eyes the night she walked into her dressing room in Las Vegas and found Michael at her dressing table, carefully putting on her makeup.

"Slowly, methodically, he was transforming himself into the very image of Miss Ross," the author says.

The flabbergasted Queen of Motown scolded moneybags Michael and told him to leave her fancy cosmetics alone.

"But it's magic!" delighted Michael told her with a lip-glossed grin.

The author says Jackson became intoxicated with the success Supremes around 1970, when record boss Berry Gordy arranged for Jackson, then 11, to move into Diana's home.

Mesmerized Michael began to talk like Diana, then began a long program of plastic surgery to turn himself into the spitting

Slinky supermodel Paulina Porizkova is often called the most gorgeous creature in the world but don't go begging pouty Paulina for beauty secrets. The sexy Czech has nothing but scorn for carrot sticks and rakishness.

Rolling Stones rowdy Keith Richards was hooked on heroin back in the '70s, but he says he kicked the habit to spare his kids the terror and shame of crooked cellie raids.

"I was on the run all the time," the guitar picker recalled. "My kids were growing up getting used to letting in hordes of policemen.

"There was a knock at the door. Is it room service — or is it the cops?"

Richards, 46, says he gave up the junkie ways while living with German actress Anita Pallenberg and their children Marlon and Dandelion.

"I can't even imagine it now, some of the things I used to go through just to get a fix. I'm through with that stuff. I realized I was screwing up the band and, even more importantly, I was screwing up my old lady and the kids." — London Daily Mirror

Curtis-busting Shirley Whitley has banished all mirrors from her posh pad, figuring it's better not to see what gravity and gravity have done to her once-sleek physique. But on occasion, her reflection still peers up and surprises the daylights out of her.

Comedienne Charlie Morgan says her loving hubby, big-shot director Louis Malle, is a hopeless klutz who's always hurting himself bloody. And sometimes his self-inflicted injuries give others quite a start.

"Once in Paris, I met him at the airport during the time of all the terrorist attacks," recalled the Murphy Brown costar. "Suddenly I saw everybody at the airport was backing up against us. Louis parted the crowd with his head in bloody bandages. Everybody thought he'd been a victim of terrorism, but he'd just been running to get a luggage cart and hit his head on a pole." — Photoplay

Hoskins remembers a stage performance of Shakespeare's Richard III as a low point in his suddenly soaring career.

The rocker with the rainbow mane dreams of having cooing little babes of her own — and because there's no man in her life at the moment, she's thinking of turning to a sperm bank for help.

"If I go ahead, it will be boom, boom, boom — one after another," the singer diva told a reporter.

"I've been so busy for so long, there has never been time. But I have such a lot to give, so much to teach a little one. Maybe after my next tour . . ."

Swashbuckling Cyndi, 30, says she's not about to leave her kids at home with strangers while she hits the concert trail. Where their rockin' mommy goes, the kids'll go, too.

"I can't wait to share my life with them. To teach them everything I know," she says.

SUPPRESSED C.I.A. DOCUMENTS PROVE U.S. POSSESSES REMAINS OF U.F.O.'S & ALIEN BEINGS

OUR LAST 8 PRESIDENTS HAVE BEEN IN ON "THE ULTIMATE DECEPTION"

NOW FOR THE FIRST TIME, ALL THE FACTS ABOUT THIS "COSMIC WATERGATE" ARE BEING RELEASED TO THE PUBLIC BECAUSE YOU HAVE A RIGHT TO KNOW THE TRUTH!

For many years, rumours have persisted that the U.S. government does in it's possession alien ships manufactured on other worlds, as well as the occupants of these interplanetary craft.

Recently released CIA, FBI and State Department documents verify that one ABOVE TOP-SECRET! episode blatantly of an area has been hidden from the people at large due to the fact that the radical new technology the alien race developed could alter our civilization overnight.

In the late 1940's and early 1950's, both Army and Air Force military units — air attack orders from the Pentagon — rushed to the site of several crashes in the Southwestern part of the United States and carted away the UNEARTHLY remains of both the craft and alien occupants. The wreckage and bodies were eventually put into deep-freeze storage at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. According to military sources who later went against orders and decided to talk, Hangar 18 was used for this purpose. To date, no one has been allowed inside — not even Senator Barry Goldwater who was hurriedly sent away although he made several requests that he be permitted to check the contents of the hangar.

A THREAT?

Now the TRUTH can be told! Reportedly because of a new law enacted by Congress known as the Freedom of Information Act, civilian researchers have been able to obtain via court order, classified CIA, FBI and State Department documents which verify the fact that we are not alone in the universe — that there is someone out there besides us.

At one point there was actually a "tug-of-war" going on between the inner branches of the government as to who was to get final access to these space craft. Said FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover in a signed memo: "the press must never get access to this since discovered. For reasons in the Louisiana case, the Army grabbed the disc and would not allow the FBI to have it for examination. Another fly, in 1973, many messages followed and Soviet AMTASS Embassy reported they attempt to recover a UFO that had gone down in the jungle.

Retired UFO researcher Timothy Green Beckley has finally broken the previously unpenetrable barrier of secrecy that has kept this amazing story out of the national media. Declassified for the first time is the existence of a highly classified scientific and development intelligence operation known as OPERATION MAJESTIC-12 responsible directly and only to the President of the United States.

MJ-12 was established by President Truman to take charge of the technical salvage and other aspects of the crashed UFOs and the small aliens who were inside the craft after it crashed. MJ-12 was made up of a team of highly trained scientists and military personnel who have been secret to date secrecy. The group is said to exist even today and now holds the responsibility of establishing an ongoing relationship with UFO beings who years ago met up with startling close with our government.

FIRST TIME REVEALED!

Is this only a good science fiction story?

Absolutely not! In this exclusive 300 page report, you will see actual reproduction of classified documents. You'll even hear from a U.S. Astronaut who shared UFOs for several days over a military base in Europe, and learn how various governments think of a UFO that landed at Edwards Air Force Base for military personnel to get a good look at. Photos of the UFO as well as drawings of the UFO as seen from on board the amazed astronauts are also included in this report.

Also — also true for the first time ever!

- The UFO that was shot at over New York's Central Park and a gaggle people that resulted from this incident.
- The proven existence of part of an extraterrestrial space craft that has been in forced secrecy for years unknown to the majority of the population.
- The location of a Top-Secret military base in Nevada where several aliens are now believed to be staying with the co-operation of the government.
- A Florida college professor who admits he has seen the actual alien vehicles reports, and knows this is not a television.
- A strange liaison that was established years ago between the military and the aliens for an exchange of goods and technology, and how one "deal" might have backfired, resulting in the widespread abduction of humans by the aliens.

READ THE SPINE-CHILLING TRUTH IN THE GOVERNMENT'S OWN DOCUMENTS

MJ-12 & THE RIDDLE OF HANGAR 18 is a shocking — perhaps shocking day — report. It is a censored printing report on a subject that will soon be in the headlines. A Congressional hearing date set in the works, and major political figures from the director of the CIA, right on up to the President of the United States may be called to testify. Have you the facts? Have you seen the photographs of the alien beings that have been kept from your eyes and ears. Also included are actual reproductions of the documents that have remained secret for so long and which change the course of history.

Surgeon stops open-heart operation — to give his blood to patient!

World-renowned surgeon Magdi Yacoub was performing a delicate open-heart operation when blood supplies ran terrifyingly low — so the desperate doctor donated his own blood to save his patient's life!

"Dr. Yacoub just grabbed a transfusion bag and said, 'Here, take mine,'" said an admiring member of the operating team at Brompton Hospital in London, England.

"He gave three or four units of his own blood, then carried on with the surgery as if nothing had happened.

"It's the first time I've ever seen a doctor give blood in the middle of an operation — but that's just the kind of man he is.

"He was brought in here because he has special talents that few others have."

The quick-thinking doc, who has performed more than 1,000 heart transplants during his distinguished career, refused to discuss his operating-room heroics.

"Dr. Yacoub doesn't want to say anything," his secretary told reporters. "You must understand he isn't interested in publicity for what he did."

But another member of the surgery team said Dr. Yacoub's fast action undoubtedly saved the unidentified patient's life.

"We were in a real crisis at the time, and suddenly we became aware that plasma supplies were low and there wasn't enough time to round up more," a fellow surgeon said. "Dr. Yacoub knew he had a matching blood type, so he didn't wait a minute. If he had hesitated, we may have lost our patient right there."

HERO Dr. Magdi Yacoub donated his own blood during surgery.

THE GOODYEAR BLIMP and other craft hovering over Chicago's Soldier Field turned off space visitors, experts say.

Blimp scared UFOs away from stadium!

UFOs were poised to land during Monday Night Football at Chicago's Soldier Field — but they shied away because of the gridlock traffic of blimps, helicopters and airplanes over the stadium!

That's the contention of Ufologist Andy Reiss, whose headline-making attempt to attract aliens to the October 2 game resulted in a no-show.

The Los Angeles space specialist had orchestrated an incredible national effort — featured in a recent issue of The NEWS — to greet aliens on Earth by sending a psychic message to them in outer space. Millions of Americans across the country are believed to have cooperated in the psychic experiment.

"I have heard from a number of Ufologists around the country that aliens responded to our questions and toured the planet more than once — but decided against landing during our traffic, including the Goodyear blimp. There's no way you could land a giant starship without causing a tragic accident. I think our space friends are going to wait for us to find a better place."

Monday Night Football viewers miss chance at historic encounter

Reiss says he's trying to keep communication open with the aliens by concentrating on a friendly message to them 30 minutes each day. He plans to organize another landing effort within the next few months, he said.

"We achieved a great deal with our first effort, and even though we didn't see a landing, we did see signs of an alien response," Reiss said.

"Now that we've had so much publicity and more cooperation, we don't need to have them land in a public place. For our next effort we're going

What big shots REALLY mean

Managers in big companies speak in code that often sounds like corporate double-talk to workers.

When the boss says the company is "prioritizing expense items," he might mean that your raise has low priority.

"New challenges lie ahead" could mean the boss will soon ask you to do more work for the same amount of money.

"A consensus" could be a decision that management made for you — a decision reached by people who don't have to suffer the consequences.

"Performance incentives" if you work harder, do a better job, come in earlier and stay later, your boss will get a big raise.

A "team player" is an employee willing to do the work of nine.

NATHANIEL – Numerological Clairvoyant Radio and Television Star

"I Can Help Make the Dream that Obsesses You Come True Quickly"

NATHANIEL

An unusual numerological clairvoyant

His visions are amazingly accurate. Millions of people have seen him on television in "The Unreal Adventures." He has described people he has never met - their profession, their type of problem, what they have already gone through and what is going to happen to them. And it is all true.

A rare quality of perception is necessary to be so successful.

Only a super-gifted clairvoyant such as Nathaniel can dare to try direct predictions.

On TV, he participated in the "Battle of the Stars" which boosts ratings each day! He has starred all over France, by the radio, he has astonished even the most incredulous with the accuracy of hundreds of visions.

His general remarks, he will be the star clairvoyant of a European broadcasting network.

What he has already said

This young star, who doesn't take himself too seriously is consulted by politicians (they send their secretaries to him with lies), physicians, bank directors, fashion designers, and businessmen.

He predicted the attack on the Pope, the death of Mary Schneider, the work stoppage of PTT and the health problems of Reagan.

His clairvoyant gift has international reputation: almost over a crystal ball or tarot cards or ink blots. His clairvoyance is direct. Flashes of images appear to him from out of the blue. If love worries you he has the capacity to see the results of the future love you'll have.

When I went to his home I was amazed at the number of letters of thanks he showed me.

"Diagnosis of letters were filled words. I selected a number of them at random (really at random). This is what they say:

"If he'd told me what I'd do in the summer, the dead, and the fact that it means that what he said. He described to me the physical appearance, the circumstances of the meeting, the age of the man I would marry, and where he would become my husband."

(Monique D.)

"When you predicted I'd find work fast, you saw the right side of the car damaged and said he was accompanied by a young blond woman... It has all come true. I'm unemployed, my husband is disappointed, and [illegible] about it. You have certainly impressed me."

(Mrs. S.B.)

"Nathaniel, my life has changed. I would not find I wished, I'd find, and was no longer dead."

(Mr. D.F.)

"What a few lines to thank you for your consultation. Most sensitive really astonished me."

(Mr. E.T.)

"Nathaniel has provided accurate predictions about my job, even giving details on the atmosphere and [illegible] of my future colleagues. It all turned out to be true."

(Mrs. J.B.)

"Your predictions showed me to be interested for the next illness, and thanks again."

(Mrs. C.M.)

"What else to tell you how much I admire you... you are amazing and unbelievable."

(Mrs. J.C.)

"I think about you often, about what you have done for me. I would like finding up close to you, and for having done so much for us."

Ed yearns for the good ol' days of iron men and leather helmets

Today's pro football players are sissies!

I damn near spit a mouthful of [illegible] washtee beer into Uncle O.V. Potter's bowl of popcorn last Sunday while watching pro football on the tube.

One of those 250-pound crybabies who call themselves football players these days came limping off the field — whining about an Astroturf burn on his knee! And this kind of thing is happening more and more.

Thank goodness the late great Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers wasn't on the sideline to see it.

He'd have ripped the big wimp's facemask off his helmet with his head still in it and then kicked his shapely butt through the goal posts.

Let's face it. A few real [illegible] pro football hasn't been [illegible]

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

[illegible] pro football made Legal Limit a real [illegible] game when players were tough guys! Who didn't retire off the field all the time high on [illegible] with little footballs in their hands.

And I know Lombardi Packers didn't play [illegible] patented plays to grass like today's wusses either. Or cream out whine!

The last time I [illegible] watching [illegible] the Bears, and Sunday after bloody Sunday sticking the highlights out of each other. It was the kind of sport a man was proud to take his son to see.

And those gridiron heroes made minimum. When did filling it [illegible] a game for pitching to some bagged drone with giant TV [illegible]?

And another thing. I saw the [illegible] when tough guys took [illegible] They used to sit for hours on hard wooden benches in the snow to cheer their team to victory.

And those Playboy Center folds who giggle and prance around the sidelines in sexy tit the suits and call themselves cheerleaders are a disgrace to the game.

Maybe cheerleaders in the [illegible] [illegible] a little chunky in the thighs and ugly as dead fishes but they sure could yell. And yelling is what cheerleading is all about, isn't it?

But what makes me so pig-headed mad is that there are only two sports left that haven't been emasculated over the years — pro wrestling and roller derby.

If this keeps up they'll be playing pro football in tights and pink slippers before long.

Hell! Vince Lombardi is lucky to be at that great stadium in the sky screaming at the late great old legends in leather helmets like batting Bronco Nagurski and romping Red Grange when it's halftime in heaven.

I don't think he could take it when they eventually have to change the names of pro football teams to things like the Green Tight Packers, Dallas Cowgirls, San Francisco Tiny Ninjas, the Detroit Lawnmowers, Tampa Bay Pillowpushers and the Pittsburgh Spicerakers.

NOW THAT'S real football! Gordon Hudgepeth, right, of the 1938 Chicago Bears is shown as several New York Giants crash three tons all to bring him down.

'We were trapped at sea 120 days'

Air pocket kept capsized boat afloat — [illegible] survivors alive!

ADRIFT at sea for 120 days in their capsized boat, sailors Phillip Hoffman, left, Rich Hollbridge, skipper, and James Malagha

Four men survived 120 days in storm-tossed Pacific waters, eating birds, fish and seaweed while clinging to the inside of their capsized boat.

The survivors were rescued after their battered sloop was sighted on the reefs surrounding a remote island off the northwest coast of New Zealand.

The three New Zealanders and one American ate their sailboat after Nettle was capsized in an enormous wave whipped up by a raging storm that struck just 100 miles into their three-week voyage to the Tonga Islands, east of Fiji.

"It was like a freight train. There was no destination and we were straight over," added Rich Hollbridge, another crewman.

The four sailors, all experienced skippers, [illegible] said he and the others were trapped inside the overturned boat for a full day before they were able to hack their way [illegible] and the castaways were able to build a small platform in a cabin that enabled them to get out of the water.

"We were huddled together in the other cabin, a space no bigger than a double mattress," Hollbridge said. "We got provisions out of the lockers, we caught fish and birds and sea-slugs and we drank rainwater."

The four months of lonely isolation finally began to have a bizarre effect on the minds of the four men.

In a cryptic statement at a press conference, American crewman Jim Malagha said he

Grieving groom seals dead wife in fiberglass

By DAMON RAY

A grieving artist couldn't bear to part with his dead bride so he had her body encased in a block of clear fiberglass!

Now Gilles Baile faces up to five years in prison because cops found out about his bizarre monument and arrested him for improperly displaying Marie Baile's corpse at his home in Agen, France.

"I'm not passing judgment on the man but he did break the law," Lt. Pascal Dalle told newsmen in Agen.

"Dead bodies should be cremated or buried, not displayed."

Shattered male says see-through tomb is monument to undying love

Baile's troubles began a few days after the wife of five weeks died of pancreatic cancer. The grief-stricken artist couldn't bring himself to bury the 26-year old woman's body. So he outfitted the corpse in a wedding gown and had it encased forever in a 700-pound chunk of fiberglass. The completed process can be properly performed by anyone who has a working knowledge of plastics and fiberglass, cops said.

"It is a demonstration of my love," said Baile.

Baile's attorney, Catherine Rojon, hopes to stay out of court by getting the client off the hook because people have been convicted in fiberglass before. A British artist fiberglassed a motorbike and drove it a few years ago and actually sold the finished product to a library," she said.

"It's true that Mr. Baile should have gotten permission to display Mrs. Baile's corpse.

But I see no reason why the authorities can't give him permission now."

How to make your kids little angels without spanking them

You can discipline an unruly child without spanking him with tips from two experts.

Kevin Welsh, professor of education at the University of Alabama at Birmingham and clinical psychologist Bob Woodard say alternatives to spanking include:

● Calling time out. Send the child to a chair or corner to stop misbehavior. Young children should stay a couple of minutes — older kids 10 to 15 minutes.

● Praising good behavior. Children respond to praise and will repeat good behavior if you are lavish with it.

● Taking away privileges. When children misbehave take away a favorite toy or turn off the TV for a few days. They'll be motivated to behave in order to get the toy or TV back.

● Making direct statements. Tell kids what you want them to do simply and firmly. Expect them to do as you say and they will.

● Using reverse psychology. If you catch children playing with matches or running, bring the whole family together and make the kids light 100 matches or say the name word 500 times.

They'll think it's funny for a few minutes. By the time they're through they'll be so sick of lighting matches or running that they won't

Belly dancing is going belly up!

Navel recruiters can't lure modern women

Egypt is facing a crisis of gut-wrenching proportions — it's rapidly running out of belly dancers!

It seems modern Egyptian women feel that belly dancing, once considered a beautiful art form, is too shameful and disgraceful to be performed in public.

The problem is that while belly dancing is still a part of Egyptian television, many think the dancers are getting almost as old

There are only about 50 officially registered and licensed belly dancers in all of Egypt, and that's a big headache for people such as Fatma Deiab, who books the dancers for nightclubs and hotels in Cairo.

"It's not like the old days," he moans. "We can't find new ones."

Adding to the problem is the growing Islamic conservatism. Requests for belly dancers are getting fewer and fewer.

Belly dancing is not as acceptable as it used to be, explained Madiha Safi, a sociology professor at the American University in Cairo.

"You used to find belly dancing at almost every party. But not anymore."

Who were those masked men?

No apologies here: outer space didn't wrinkle in 1943. These air raid wardens in Flint, Mich., were just taking part in a World War 2 drill. Here they've put on their gas masks before going into a smoke-filled test. That's when they found out how well their masks worked — or didn't work

DEATH SHIP

A shipload of elderly tourists spent two days trapped in a fatal oil spill off the coast of southern Nigeria — and the captain died of shock. There were also minor injuries among the passengers, police said.

CON artist Lisa Coleman

FLIM-FLAM MOM

[redacted] trusting townsfolk for a $2,000 ride, say cops

Warmhearted townsfolk dug deep into their pockets to help Lisa Coleman in her time of trouble — and they got flim-flammed but good, cops say.

The 28-year-old woman told locals in Inverness, Fla., she had 10 kids and got a nearly $2,000 donation to help her. But now she's back in Citrus County facing charges of grand theft and violation of probation.

"We've gotten calls from all over Florida saying she'd pulled the same scam elsewhere," Investigator Bruce Lovett of the Citrus County Sheriff's Office told The NEWS. "She had a garage full of food and clothing with price tags on some of the stuff. Is she going to have a garage sale."

According to Lovett, Lisa turned up at the county shelter with a sad story and a plea for help. She said her husband was in jail for having assaulted her with a knife and she was alone and penniless with 10 children to care for.

The obese woman explained that she had five kids of her own — and five more she'd taken on after her sister was killed in an automobile accident in Arkansas, Sgt. Lovett said.

She said she was caring for three 7-year-olds, two 8-year-olds, one 9-year-old, two 10-year-olds and two 6-month-old babies, officials say — but she never brought any of them with her when she went to the shelter. Nevertheless, people were so moved by her story that when a local newspaper wrote an article about her there was an outpouring of help.

"People gave her containers, clothing, food and some money," Sgt. Lovett said. "They offered appliances. They were really touched."

But as the donations poured in, shelter workers began to get suspicious. When asked where the appliances could be delivered, Lisa said she'd just given her address. Witnesses say. When social workers said they'd help her get benefits for her niece and nephews, Lisa kept putting them off.

Finally — as the questions mounted — Lisa dropped out of sight for good. And shelter workers figured out that they'd been taken, Sgt. Lovett said. Within days, the mother of one was in custody charged with grand theft.

"She's looking at prison time," Sgt. Lovett said. "She took advantage of a lot of nice people."

I've earned an A in stupidity — because I'm having my teacher's baby

Dear Dotti: My college professor and I have been madly in love for nine months. There are, however, a few problems. The first is that he is married to a paraplegic woman, who is incapable of having sex.

The second is that I am pregnant with his child. What should we do? If we tell his wife, it would kill her. But if we keep hiding this I think I'll have an emotional breakdown. I feel confused. I feel baffled. But most of all, I feel stupid. Please help me. — Wrecked in Montana

Dear Wrecked: Honesty is always the best policy in a situation like that. You and the professor should go to his wife and tell her the whole story. If he balks, go to the women by yourself. While you're at it, talk to his boss.

Confidential

Dear Wise in Memphis: If the doctor's wife pleases him, then she should sit with her legs crossed.

Dear Tiger in Wyandotte, Mich.: It's what's up front that counts.

Dear Known as N.J.: I don't care if you were behind the restaurant. It's still in public.

Dear Worried in Pittsburgh: He has no business bringing a spatula into the bedroom.

Dear Curious in Charleston: I don't care what your boyfriend says. If you shave it, you're going to itch.

Dear Scared in Phoenix Beach: That's what you get for spending cramped with the Bird.

My hubby says my cooking stinks

Dear Dotti: My husband used to be a butcher and he's always been Mr. Know-It-All. My problem is that he does nothing but criticize the exact dishes I make for my dinner.

He thinks all he has to do is go out and buy a roast or some steaks and that gives him the right to put me down because he thinks I serve the dishes up.

He's making me a nervous wreck, Dotti. What can I do? — Wife's End in Yonkers

Dear Wife's End: Your husband is a fool. The next time he brings a steak home you might be able to slap his face with it and say "Cook it yourself, jerk."

I can't get a cop to date me

Dear Dotti: I'm 19 years old and I have a problem with cops. I like talking to them and I always wanted to go out with one but no cop wants to go out with me.

I've tried to find a cop who would be interested in me but I can't. I talk to every cop I see but they won't have anything to do with me. What should I do? — Down in San Juan

Dear Down: If you're that desperate to date an authority figure, beg.

Please be nice to people, Dotti

Dear Dotti: I think you are very mean and I'm mad at you. Please start being nice to people. Will you do that? — Young Reader in Portland

Dear Young: No

Can you help me win the lottery?

Dear Dotti: Could you please, please, please help me win the lottery? I read your column all the time and your advice makes a lot of sense.

Thanks for listening and please give me some lucky lottery numbers. — Hoping in New York

Dear Hoping: Don't be stupid. If I had any lucky numbers, I'd use them to win the lottery myself. Why don't you quit bothering people for help? That got rich was the lottery only time she's been

I can't cut the apron strings

Dear Dotti: I live in Massachusetts with my mother but all my friends are in Florida. I want to go to Florida, get a job and live with my friends. I really do miss my friends and I'm bored in Massachusetts. What should I do? — Confused in Massachusetts

Dear Confused: Definitely stay with your mother until you grow up enough to make up your mind. — If this short column

Dear Countess: My birth date is 10/16/32 and my question to you is this: I have a five-pointed star, a pentagram, on the palm of my right hand. It isn't a tattoo. I was born with it.

I have tried and tried to find out what it is, but nobody can help and I'm hoping and praying that you can. I have certain supernatural powers. Can you tell me what the pentagram means? — Need to Know in Munich, West Germany

Dear Need to Know: Be patient and pleasant — I repeat, do not — quit too many questions. You will fully understand the purpose of the pentagram until your more special powers when you meet your soul-mate next June.

This person, a woman, will have a prestigious job but left hand. Do not look for her. She will find you. Your destiny and the meaning of life itself will magically be revealed when you two lovers such this lady.

Dear Countess: The other night I dreamed that my old flame came to my house and told me that a dear friend of mine should pay more attention to spiritual matters.

The old man didn't mention this friend. I wonder if you know her name? — Puzzled in South Dakota

Dear Puzzled: That "dear friend" is you and the old man was just a manifestation of your own subconscious mind. What's more, he's right. You have been neglecting the spiritual aspect of your life. Daily prayer or meditation will get you back on track.

Dear Countess: I'm in the 10th grade and up until now I really messed up in school. I'm working really hard to change all that, but I'm still not sure if I'm going to graduate. Should I go ahead and get measured for my cap and gown? I need to know if I'm going to graduate or I won't waste my time. — Incomplete in Kansas City

Dear Incomplete: All your hard work is beginning to pay off and if you keep it up, you will indeed graduate next spring.

My advice? Get measured for that cap and gown. You'll be going to make it, honey. I also see a new wardrobe in your future.

Earthquakes will be heading east

A massive earthquake like the one that rocked San Francisco last month will strike the eastern United States within the next 20 years, killing thousands of people and causing billions in property damage, leading experts warn.

By JOHN BLACKBURN

"On the basis of what has happened historically, the probability is almost 100 percent that there will be a major earthquake in the East before the year 2010," predicts Robert L. Ketter of the National Center for Earthquake Engineering Research.

"Every firm is on alert in the eastern two-thirds of the nation," adds Russell Dratsen, whose engineering firm, Khoury Services Inc., sponsors earthquake symposiums to alert the public to the danger.

"Terror firms is more like it," the scientists. "Inasmuch the rock underlying the states east of the Rocky Mountains can carry the shock waves much greater distances than the California granite. So, an earthquake of the magnitude of just 6 on the modern-day Richter scale would be a catastrophe, terrifying disaster in the Midwest, the South, New England or anywhere along the East Coast."

Geologists point out that the most severe quakes in U.S. history — even more intense than the devastating San Francisco shaker of 1906, estimated to measure a whopping 8.3 on the Richter scale — were three giant jolts at New Madrid, Missouri, in the winter of 1811-12.

Incredibly, these monstrous temblors created an 18,000-acre lake, caused church bells to ring in Boston, Mass., 1,000 miles away and reversed the Mississippi River.

"There were very few casualties and little property damage simply because the area was sparsely populated," says Robert Chartrand of the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress. "But a tremor equivalent to those three shocks today could be expected to do major damage in Missouri and into Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and other communities in neighboring areas, however."

Scientists say another potential target for a killer quake in the next 20 years is the Charleston, S.C., area, where a 7.3-magnitude quake in 1886 killed at least 60 residents and ruined buildings as far west as Chicago and St. Louis and as far north as New York and even Boston.

"Not to be an alarmist, but the scenario of the disaster that could occur in the eastern U.S. scares me."

NEW YORK'S Statue of Liberty could fall victim to an earthquake. An expert warns that the eastern U.S. is due for "the big one."

New York & Boston are going to be NEXT!

An astonishing new food su tis in up to 65 percent of patients late.

The product, called SeaCure, is the sea cucumber, and is now availab

Nobody knows how the pills work. But studies conducted in Australia and America have shown them to be safe and surprisingly effective in easing the pain of rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis, two of the most devastating forms of joint disease.

"The product is definitely worth a try," said Dr. Mort Schwarzberg, director of rheumatology at Jersey Shores Medical Center in Neptune, N.J.

"It has few if any side effects. It's available without prescription. And tests show that it may have a beneficial effect in relieving the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis.

"I would like to see more rigorous studies to isolate the active ingredient. Meanwhile, it's nice to have something so promising and safe for arthritis patients to try.

"I recommend it to my own patients."

In a eye-opening study, Dr. Schwarzberg found that seven of 10 or 50 percent of patients with rheumatoid arthritis reported a reduction of pain and greater freedom of movement after using SeaCure.

Seven of 11 or 63 percent of patients with rheumatoid arthritis said the same.

Those dramatic results were virtually surpassed in a study conducted by arthritis specialist Mi

In the United States, arthritis victim Eleanor Kapanin suffered crippling arthritis in her fingers and knees until she saw an advertisement for the product and tried it.

"After a severe reaction I was taken off prescription medications as I had nothing for my arthritis," said Mrs. Kapanin of Carlisle, Penn.

"The pain in my knees and fingers was so bad that I could hardly walk or hold anything in my hands. After taking SeaCure the pain almost vanished.

"I would recommend it to anyone who suffers from arthritis pain."

Joanne Vaagland of West Palm Beach, Fla., had such a severe case of arthritis that she couldn't tell previous of turn over in bed.

"SeaCure has changed my life," she said. "After taking it for eight months I'm actually bowling with a 10-pound ball."

Delphine Harper of Brooklyn, N.Y., tried cortisone and five other prescription medications for her arthritis and even had surgery on one of her crippled knees.

But she remained in agony until she started using SeaCure.

"It seems hard to believe but I am no longer suffering," said Miss Harper. "The stiffness in my knees is gone. I feel great."

Doctors told Mary Floyd of Teaneck, N.J., that she would have to take pain pills and have cortisone injections for the rest of her life just to be able to walk.

She tried SeaCure with these ridiculous results:

"I started feeling better in just four days," she exclaimed. "I haven't had a cortisone injection in over a month.

"But the most significant change in my life is the total cessation of pain medication and reduction of arthritic medication from 300 milligrams to 25 milligrams. I plan to make SeaCure a daily part of my life."

Mary Floyd, 63, and her husband Ed can now play golf again thanks to SeaCure arthritis pills

Arthritis victim Harry Mellnoff, 68, of Cherbrook, N.J., added: "I've been suffering for many years with pain and stiffness in my legs and knees and had to give up walking. After taking SeaCure I'm able to ride a bike and walk two to three miles every day without pain. I don't know what I'd do without it."

Before trying any new treatment or remedy you should always consult a doctor. Man buys new car a year for 50 years — from same dealer!

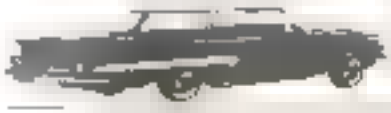
By JACK ALEXANDER

The country's most satisfied customer is a retired Iowa farmer who just bought his 50th new car from the same dealer.

Earl Rothlisberger has been buying cars from Falb and Sons in Elgin, Iowa, since 1933. Only the time [illegible]



"During World War 2 he couldn't get a new car from Falb because of the war, so he went to Elkader and bought a Buick," said Rothlisberger's sister, Hazel.

Statistician at Automotive News magazine could find no one else in the United States who has bought more than 30 cars from the same dealer.

Rothlisberger, 80, usually gets 7,000 miles on [illegible] cars before trading them in.

And the trade-ins are in demand.

"They're very much wanted for."

"Some people have bought Earl's cars several years in a row," said Lee Lehman, owner of Falb and Sons.

The old farmer's 50 cars have included 42 Buicks, seven Chevrolets and one Pontiac. There was only one lemon in the 50.

"Earl had one car that would stop in traffic all the time," said Hazel Rothlisberger. "He traded it back in."

"It did it for the next owner, too. They found out there was something in the carburetor, a factory defect."

"It wasn't Falb's fault."

Ahead a year from now, Earl will be ready for No. 51. And just like the other 50, it will be a cash deal.

Why, those little liars!

Many kids have become free-spoken and skillful liars by the age of 3 and have even learned to choose lethal experiment to conceal their lies.

What's more, most adults can't tell when a 3-year-old is lying, according to a new study published in Developmental Psychology.

In a study, almost every child did something scientists told her to do, but 80 percent of the kids lied about it.

Researchers concluded that parents are to blame because they teach kids social lying skills, such as saying pleasant thank-yous for inappropriate or unwanted gifts.

Mom kills tennis tyrant dad to protect daughter!

MOM Ruth Lulling, left, had enough of the abuse of their daughter by her husband Klaus, right — so she shot him.

By IRWIN FISHER

A father's obsession with making his daughter a tennis star ended when his wife couldn't bear his tyranny any longer — and shot him dead!

Ruth Lulling was charged with the murder of her iron-fisted husband Klaus but a court in Hagen, West Germany apparently felt she was justified in killing the man and gave her a two-year suspended sentence.

The woman tearfully testified that Lulling beat their daughter Gabi for losing tennis matches.

He also forced Gabi to practice up to 14 hours a day because he wanted her to become a world-class tennis ace like the West German Steffi Graf.

I couldn't stand his daily workout with Gabi's tennis racquet," said Mrs. Lulling.

"I have so many painful memories of our 23-year marriage," she added. "It was hell."

Arrested in Koblenz, Lulling quit his job as a welding machine salesman eight years ago so he could devote all his time to his daughter's tennis career.

He wouldn't let her see boys or listen to rock music and insisted that she practice until she was as good as Wimbledon champion Steffi Graf.

"When I played badly he hit me," said the young woman. "Once he knocked a tooth out with his fist. But I don't want to be a second Steffi Graf. I just want to enjoy playing the game."

Gabi . . . she won't get hit-

The young woman's nightmare ended when Mrs. Lulling shot her husband six times as he lay bent to hit in bed.

He beat up the girl and drove her like a dog to make her a tennis star!

And now that her trial is over the woman and her daughter are determined to put the past behind them and get on with their lives.

"I have rebuilt the upstairs bedroom where he died. Now I'm going to burn all his photos," Mrs. Lulling said.

Chances for heart attack highest for short men

Short guys are more likely to have heart attacks, new research reveals.

According to the British Heart Foundation, 118 out of 1,000 men under 5 feet 8 inches suffered a heart attack while only 62 out of 1,000 men over 5 feet 10 inches had a heart attack during the same eight year period.

The major factor associated with the extra risk of heart disease in the shorter men appeared to be their poorer lung function.

"It is possible that lung function, like height, is a marker of the effects on growth and development of childhood environmental factors such as nutrition and infection, and this may contribute to health status in adult life," said Dr. Mary Webber, co-director of the study.

Short men also tended to have higher blood pressure and cholesterol levels and to smoke more than taller men in the study.

LION TRAGEDY

Little Jake Lantipe, 5, was killed by a mountain lion while riding his tricycle just 30 yards from his home in Evans, Mont. Authorities said the animal was later tracked down and destroyed.

DAD drove his daughter to be like superstar Steffi Graf, above. You'll be as good as she is . . . or ELSE, he told her.

Nurse dumps hubby for brain-damaged cripple

A beautiful young nurse dumped her husband to marry a brain-damaged man who wooed her with a computer.

Christine Channel, 33, said she first realized she had feelings for semi-vegetable Darren Matthews when he tapped out the words "I love you" on a computer at a nursing home in Porthcawl, Wales.

The young woman eventually fell head over heels in love with Matthews. She quickly divorced husband Eddie Channel and now wants to set up house with Matthews and her two sons, ages 6 and 7.

"I couldn't help falling in love," said Mrs Channel. "Darren wooed me on the computer because he can't speak. Now I hope to help him get stronger and eventually walk again."

Matthews, 31, was perfectly normal until vicious thugs beat him to the edge of death at a bus stop in 1987. He is now confined to a wheelchair. He is also brain-damaged and mute.

Mrs. Channel's ex-husband still can't get over the fact that she chose Matthews over him.

"People pity him, but what about me? I'm devastated," he said.

Moms put kids in sex market, say cops

By JACK ALEXANDER

Two mothers invited men to their home every week or a year — and allowed them to have sex with their six children, cops say.

"The women would line up their children and tell these men to take their pick," said Otsego, Mich., Police Detective Warren Cain.

Five of the youngsters, four girls and a boy, are 6 to 13 years old. The sixth is a returned 18-year-old girl. Mom Annette Stanford, 34, was charged with four counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. Carolyn Wilson, 42, was charged with one count of first-degree child abuse and four counts of criminal sexual Newport. Both women have pleaded not guilty.

'They'd tell the men to take their pick'

At least seven men visited the women's house in 1987 and 1988 to select their victims from the lineup. The children were then sexually assaulted in their bedrooms, said investigators.

Police reported that the women each had three children and lived together in Otsego about 30 miles south of Grand Rapids.

Authorities put the children in foster homes in May 1988 after one of the girls told school officials she had been abused, said Det. Cain. Sixteen months later, cops issued arrest warrants for the two women.

"We wanted to wait until we thought the children were prepared to testify," said Det. Cain.

"We didn't feel they were ready a year ago."

Young mom escapes from kidnappers — but dies in plane crash on her way home!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A young woman who was drugged and held captive for three days was flying home with her hubby after the ordeal when the plane crashed — and they burned to death.

Belinda Yancey, 33, her husband Chuck and four others perished when their twin-engine plane smashed into a tree near Mayfield, Ky., and exploded in flames.

TRAGIC Belinda Yancey, 33

"The crash stunned tiny Mayfield which was still in shock from Mrs Yancey's abduction earlier in the week.

"As far as people going through one tragedy and then all getting killed, I've never seen anything like that before," said State Police Lt Tom Flirk.

Mrs Yancey disappeared on a Monday afternoon after telling her 16-year-old son she was going to the nearby Murray State University bookstore.

When she didn't return late that night, the family filed a missing persons report, said Police Capt. Bob Crawford.

The young mother who taught hearing-impaired kids seemed to have vanished into thin air until a lifeguard saw her wandering on the beach at Daytona Beach, Fla., about 800 miles from Mayfield.

She appeared to be drugged with Valium, was disoriented and didn't even know her name, authorities said.

"They kept giving me little blue pills," she told police.

She could not recall how she got to Florida or identify who drove her there. Her long brown hair had been cut and dyed.

Her husband, cousin Terry Spinks, his wife and an uncle, the Rev. Charles Nelson, had flown from Kentucky to Florida in a Beechcraft 18 to bring her back to Mayfield.

Pilot John Haag was trying to land the plane in a dense fog, but missed the runway and plowed into the trees. "The family had planned a quiet homecoming for her," said neighbor Mike Furlay. "To go through what she went through and then die in a plane crash ... it's a real shame."

1. Are you just as likely as the next person to collect for a gift when a coworker has a baby or birthday?

2. Do you return paperwork, raises or promotions, do you compliment your coworker and boss instead of just tooting your own horn?

3. When a coworker gets a gratuitous compliment from a customer?

9. Are you cooperative, and do you do your fair share at work?

10. Are you cooperative, and do you do your fair share at work?

If you answered yes to all 10 questions, you are a team player and a pleasure to work with.

If you answered yes to eight or nine questions, coworkers probably see you as cooperative most of the time.

If you answered yes to fewer than eight questions, you are upsetting coworkers. You are not a team player — and you need to change your ways pronto!

EXORCISM SAVES TEEN ON CRACK

POWER OF PRAYER Father Francisco Campagna helped thousands of people throughout Mexico

HOOKED ON CRACK COCAINE Jonique Lopez, 17, was cleared

A 17-year-old crack addict hasn't touched the drug since his parents got a priest to exorcise the evil spirit that was making him smoke it up to 15 times a day!

We got our faith on board and the gang on a miracle. Our own Lupe, the young mum's mother told news men in Mexico City.

If the Lord hadn't intervened, Jon would be dead or in jail. He was killing himself with drugs. But he's back to normal again.

The bizarre drama began when young Enrique Lopez got in with a bad crowd and started experimenting with crack. A pea-sized piece of cocaine is 10 dollars.

The former top student started skipping school and was soon stealing to support his habit.

Mrs. Lopez and husband Luis tried everything to get their boy off the drug but nothing worked.

In desperation they drafted in Father Francisco Campagna, a healer and exorcist who is credited by many with helping thousands of people through out Mexico.

'They begged me to get their son off of drugs,' says priest

Then begged me to get their son off of drugs but I was sceptical. I could help. Father Francisco ... [illegible] ... he was not ... [illegible] ... he explained ...

[illegible] ... and when ... [illegible] ... I did so. Jonique ... [illegible] ... and ... [illegible] ... wall. He ... [illegible] ... me and screamed and threw a vase at my head.

When he called on Satan to help him there was no doubt in my mind. The boy was possessed by a demon.

Father Francisco said he snatched a bottle of holy water off his desk and splashed it on young Lopez's face.

The teenager roared and fell to the ground and began to rage at the priest. He ... [illegible] ... and ... [illegible] ... then immediately picked up a Bible and ... [illegible] ... and pointed the exorcism cross.

Twenty-two minutes later the boy ... [illegible] ... the floor.

The parents and the priest slowly and ... [illegible] ... to his feet.

"All he could say," said Mrs. Lopez, "was 'I'm sorry, Mama.' Suddenly he ... [illegible] ... the ... [illegible] ... again."

"That was over three years ago and he hasn't had ... [illegible] ... to do with drugs since. He is free of his addiction. We finally have our son back."

Said Father Campagna, "The evil spirit that possessed the boy is gone. It will not return again."

MISER Ronald Summerfield

Miser lived in house of treasures!

Crazy antiques dealer Ronald Summerfield was too cheap to repair the leaky water pipes in his home. But when he died, cops found his house filled with an antiques collection that was worth a king's ransom!

Modern-day Scrooge worth millions

By CHRIS O'NEIL

Summerfield was a modern-day Scrooge who used only one bare bulb to light his house.

Neighbors thought he was penniless. But when he died on March 31 at age 87, stunned relatives found he possessed a fortune in valuable antiques. His little house in Cheltenham, England, was crammed from floor to ceiling with priceless paintings, porcelain, king dynasty vases and furniture.

Summerfield's nephew Sutton Hamilton discovered the amazing stash of treasures.

"There was so much stuff in every room that it was impossible to open most of the doors properly," he said. "Some of the rooms had not been opened since the 1950s."

It will take the best auctioneers from famed Christie's of London six days to auction 15,000 antiques from the collection. It will be the largest Christie's sale since 1968.

From Summerfield's collection of silver alone there is an 1816 Regency table centerpiece worth about $118,000 and four George III candlesticks worth $4,000 each.

The millions of dollars collected from the auction will be placed in a charitable trust fund to help the sick and needy.

Summerfield's obsession for hoarding antiques began when he was a teenager. He even spent his allowance on small antiques instead of candy, according to his sister, Barbara Hamilton.

"We always thought he'd get rather a miserable life because he was always pinching. But I suppose he was happy simply collecting," said Mrs. Hamilton.

Americans lousy spellers!

Americans are the worst spellers in the English-speaking world!

That's the shocking conclusion of a spelling bee competition between international whiz kids in the United States, Australia, Canada and Britain.

The average American misspelled more than six of the 10 words on the test.

The best spellers were found in Australia, followed by Canada, Britain and the United States.

The nine words — magazine, sandwich, hemorrhage, calamity, penitentiary, picnicking, decisive, mesalliance, cauliflower and parallel — were used on the test in all four countries.

Only one pupil in 20 could spell all the words correctly.

Among the study's other findings:

● Of the 10 words on the test, penitentiary was the hardest for Americans.

● Women are better spellers than men except in Britain, where the sexes are about equal.

● In the country, the best spellers are those between 14 and 44 years old.

Husband fights to free wife who tried to kill him!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Soft-hearted hubby Gregory Dickinson is on a one-man crusade to get his wife out of prison — after she tried to kill him.

Wearing a sandwich board and carrying a sign, Dickinson, 39, picketed the Statehouse in Indianapolis, Ind., to get a pardon for his wife, Karen.

She is serving a 20-year prison sentence for shooting him in the side during a spat 13½ years ago. She was convicted of attempted murder.

"Karen is innocent, and she should not have to go through two or more years," said Dickinson.

A few hours after his wife of 14½ years ended an argument with a bang, Dickinson filed a statement with police stating he feared she might commit suicide and finish him off unless she were jailed. But a few days later the wounded hubby dropped by Vermillion County Prosecutor Larry Thomas' office for a chat.

"He indicated he had talked with God and God had told him to drop those charges against his wife," said Thomas.

Dickinson said he was in shock when he gave cops a statement after the shooting and didn't know what he was saying. He said the shooting was an accident.

But the state isn't so forgiving as Dickinson. "We didn't think it was appropriate to dismiss the case on matters of Mr. Dickinson changing his mind or not," said prosecutor Thomas.

So Dickinson took his plea to the Statehouse steps, hoping to entertain Governor Evan Bayh to pardon his wife.

Gov. Bayh has the power to pardon prisoners, but only in the most unusual circumstances would he do it for a prisoner who hasn't served one-third of the sentence. Mrs. Dickinson has served less than a year of hers.

HAPLESS hubby Gregory Dickinson picketed Indiana's Statehouse in a one-man campaign to free his jailed wife. His mate shot him during a spat.

Runaway army tank smashes into tavern

A runaway army tank rampaged down a busy street and bore the side off a tavern.

All hell broke loose when the tank's brakes failed during maneuvers and it rolled down a hill.

Twelve women who were drinking at the bar in Hemer, West Germany, were thrown to the floor when the tank's 88-foot gun barrel ripped through the building.

Cars stored in an upstairs room poured down on the women as the ceiling caved in. Then 800 pigs from a next-door farm charged into the street for the feast.

The tavern owner's wife, Marie-Therese Grote, said: "You never see such a mess in your life. The Indian had a real swim, but they all laughed about it later."

Dogs see colors as well as people do!

Everybody thinks dogs see the world in black and white. But it's just not so. According to a groundbreaking new study, they see most colors as well as people do!

"Experiments lead to the straightforward conclusion that dogs have color vision," declared Gerald Jacobs, a psychologist at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

The expert tested a poodle and two greyhounds with a special computer and found that they could easily distinguish subtle variations in colors.

SHOCKER

Palimony suit costs man $573,523!

A man says he checked up with a gal for 15 years just for the fun of it, but now he has to pay a whopping $573,523 in palimony.

Knut Bergendorff said that when she moved in with him he prohibited her from cooking and cleaning and he pledged to take care of her for the rest of her life. But Halvorsen remembered it this way: "She needed a place for her daughter to grow up, and I needed sex."

Miss Bergendorff, 58, sued 63-year-old Halvorsen, her childhood pal in Denmark, after he booted her from his home in Bradenton, Fla., in 1987.

The judge found that the couple presented themselves as man and wife and that Halvorsen claimed the woman and her daughter as dependents on his tax returns.

Divorce lawyers rubbed their hands in glee.

"That's fascinating," one said. "This will bring a lot of people into a lot of lawyers' offices."

A LOVE STORY you'll never forget!

Wife kills herself so dying husband can have her heart!

By LAUREL DOWIE

Courageous Katerina Gallett walked into a hospital rest room, put a pistol to her head and shot herself to death — so surgeons could give her heart to her dying husband.

Shocked doctors quickly performed the life-saving transplant operation on Katerina's ailing husband Gunter after finding a suicide note explaining her spine-chilling scheme.

"I don't agree with her method, but I have to say it was the most unselfish act I've ever seen," astonished Dr. Klemen Preminger told reporters in West Berlin, Germany.

"Here was a woman who sacrificed her own life so the man she loved could go on living. It's really very touching," said Dr. Preminger.

Grieving Gunter Gallett (6), still stunned by his wife's violent death, was reported in fair condition with her heart beating in his chest.

"I am so grateful to her, but I wish I had known what she was planning so I could have made her see I didn't want that," the father of four said sadly. "She did it for love — but I never deserved that much love."

The horror tale began more than a year ago when doctors informed the former fireman his heart was failing fast and he'd need a transplant to live.

Gunter was put on a waiting list for a new heart, and he and Katerina stayed by the phone praying for word that they'd find him one," said friend Rita Zeller.

"The dentist went by and Gunter's condition kept getting worse, but they never received a heart for him. Finally he got so bad he had to stay in the hospital and Katerina knew his time was running out."

She plotted and drew her heart would be transplanted to his body and she was thinking of just giving it to him. She said that would be better than living without him.

"But, I never dreamed she'd actually kill herself."

But the world discovered the strength of gentle Katerina's love when the 48-year-old housewife blew her brains out in the same hospital where her husband lay dying. Doctors found a note pinned to her blood-spattered dress, pleading with them to give her heart to her hopeless husband.

"We did as she asked because it was her dying wish," Dr. Klemen Preminger said. "No one, especially not her husband was happy with the way things happened — but love sometimes works in strange ways."

HAPPY with Katerina Gallett's gift of love has saved the life of her husband Gunter who needed a heart transplant.

Is it time to change jobs?

It happens to all of us at one time or another. We all back, take stock of things, then ask ourselves the 64,000 question — Is it time to change jobs?

How we answer that question can have an enormous impact on our lives. Here are a few clues that experts say may help you decide if it's time to move on to something new.

● Do hours on the job creep past as quickly now you're surprised when it's time to go home? Or are you a clock-watcher?

● If you're doing exactly what you were doing a year ago, you may be stagnating in a job you should get out of.

● Are those aspects of your job that you once enjoyed and looked forward to lost somewhere?

● Do you feel restless in your job? Does it lack the challenges you feel you need in your life? Are you resisting the desire to move on to something new?

● Have you been keeping your eyes open for other job opportunities? Do you have the burning desire to just pick up and move to another city or state?

● Is it getting harder and harder for you to get up in the morning? Do you get a sickly feeling in your gut as you get to your job?

● When at work, do you get angry or irritated and fly off the handle at your coworkers more frequently than you used to?

If you answered yes to any — or all of these questions, it might very well be time for you to move on to something new in the job line.

Making a job change, especially for older workers and single women, is always a scary step.

But one thing most successful people have in common is that they put aside their anxieties and make the change anyway.

"I have studied all kinds of posteriors, and you can tell a great deal," said the former paper for a reading.

A man is accused of ruining the love affair he turned his home into a horror for 500 snakes and lizards and more than 1,000 rats and mice.

The strange menagerie in [redacted] included two poisonous banded Mexican lizards, which are prohibited by city law in San Carlos, [redacted] said.

Gary Superfoy, 33, said he began keeping large snakes as a child years when he saw the rapidly diminishing snake habitats as the rapidly threatening some species.

"I've never hidden the fact," Superfoy said of his snake hoard.

"I wasn't making anything secret."

He was surprised that some of his pet pythons and boa constrictors might have their tranquilizing ability because they had been taken out of specially designed cages when they were seized by cops. The rats and mice, he said, were food for the snakes.

Superfoy was arrested on keeping poisonous pets in a residential area.

Pearl bracelet found in oyster!

LUCKY find Mario searches for pearls in an oyster similar to the one in which he found the seven-inch bracelet. Mario says his hobby finally paid off!

A Japanese man found a pearl bracelet when he popped open a gigantic oyster!

Even more incredible: Isao Narita says the string was jammed by a slender golden clasp and has an appraised value of $10,000.

"It was quite a discovery," Narita, 33, told reporters in Miami, Japan.

I was opening oysters hoping to find a single pearl when I found the bracelet. I couldn't believe my eyes.

Only a jeweler, he said, was unable to tell that when I took it in his fingers and slipped it out. I saw how big and beautiful it really was. I punched my self to make sure I wasn't dreaming. It was too good to be true.

Nobody knows how the bracelet got into the oyster's shell. Many gem experts scoffed and theorize biologist Hideo Watanabe.

It's possible that the necklace caught at sea or fell into the water off some boat's owner.

If somebody put it in the oyster as a joke then they must have been very rich or foolish," said Narita.

Frankly, I don't care how it got there or why. I just want to sell it to a jeweler or private party and put all the worries on the back.

Narita has been opening oysters in search of pearls for several years as a hobby.

Before finding the bracelet he found only one small pearl that he sold for $2k.

I was going to give up my hobby because it wasn't paying off, but I'm certainly excited to keep doing it now," he said.

Who knows? If I get really lucky I may crack open an oyster and find a diamond ring."

Not surprisingly, Narita's discovery has sparked a boom in pearl diving and oyster shucking among people who hope to find something as valuable as his bracelet.

Japanese experts warn that the chances of finding such a single pearl are only one in 100,000.

500-lb. boulder crashes through woman's roof

Startled Susan Lauder fell screeching when a huge chunk of limestone smashed into her home that shook her "right down to the fillings in my teeth" — and discovered a giant boulder had fallen through her roof!

The Westover, W. Va., mother found the enormous 500-pound chunk of limestone lodged on the floor of her bedroom. Fortunately, the kids weren't there and nobody was injured. The homeowner later learned the rock had been dislodged by a nearby dynamite blast. Workers blasting for a new highway sent the boulder flying 350 feet in the air and nearly 700 feet away from the site, right into Mrs. Lauder's home.

Coffin disappears from cemetery and cops are baffled

By JACK ALEXANDER

Cops are baffled by the mysterious disappearance of a coffin that was buried in a secluded cemetery for 86 years.

"Someone dug it up and took it away . . . corpse and all," said Sheriff's Deputy Reeve Johnson in Bowling Green, Ky.

The remains of Esther Ann Stewart, 75, had rested undisturbed since her death Aug. 13, 1901. A headstone and a fieldstone marked her grave.

A 6-foot hole was neatly dug to remove the casket.

"A gravedigger would not have done a better job," said Dep. Johnson.

There were four other well-marked, neatly kept graves in the family plot that weren't disturbed. They belonged to relatives who died at the turn of the century.

"It looks anything I've ever seen. If one of them devil worshippers did it, they wouldn't bother with the coffin," said Dep. Johnson.

"For us I know, we don't have any of those weird Satan freaks around these parts."

It's possible someone dug up the grave to relocate the body but after 86 years, "that would really be reaching for a reason," said the deputy.

"We haven't a clue as to what happened to it," said Dep. Johnson.

"We're stumped."

A state permit is required before a body may be disinterred and moved to another cemetery.

"Ex-Truck Driver Gets $21,108 a [illegible] Doing What You Aren't"

By Neville B. Lavin - Special Feature Writer.

Orlando, FL — "It only took me 1 week to start whipping $21,108 a month and I can take any average person and show them exactly how to do it," declares Lawrence Tibish.

Tibish began a few years ago with humble beginnings as a truck driver. But the cash didn't start to roll in until he discovered this little known money making secret.

"We can really be the kind of person that you always wanted to be."

And what's more," he adds, "he could [illegible] with absolutely little effort."

"I will share no magic wand, and [illegible] is there take time and work. But it's worth it, believe" he adds. "I even want people who are willing to put forth some effort in your life."

Now you can not make as much as Tibish, but if you are a real "Go-Getter," who will make every [illegible] count, where you have that you with the respect of your friends and family.

Mom gives birth to miracle baby!

God answered my prayers, says Tim's mom Pam Peterson.

By JUNE SAWYER

Pregnant Pam Peterson went through 12 hours of hell after doctors told her the child still was carrying was dead. But the young mom prayed for a miracle — and [illegible] birth to a kicking, [illegible] and very much alive little boy!

"I couldn't believe it was my own baby crying," said Pam, 30, [illegible], England. "I couldn't stop touching him to make sure it was really happening.

"I had given up hope thinking God had some purpose for him in Heaven. But He answered my prayers after all!"

Today, little Tim is the picture of health, but on January 16, when Pam's ordeal began, it looked like there was no chance he would live.

Pam woke that morning with [illegible] pains. The mother of three knew something was terribly wrong and told her husband Jim to call an ambulance. At the hospital Pam was given a stress test and within minutes she was given the bad news. There was no sign of life in her womb.

"I had gone for a scan just a few days earlier and I'd seen the heartbeat myself," Pam recalled. "But this time the doctor was blunt. When they told me the baby was dead I became hysterical."

Doctors gave the hopeless mom [illegible] drugs to induce the birth of her "dead" child.

Then, as Pam's baby was wracked by labor pains, they helped her make arrangements to dispose of the unborn baby.

"They wanted to know what we were going to do once the baby was delivered," Pam said. "It was the most terrible 12 hours of my life, preparing for the autopsy and funeral before my baby was even born!"

The hospital staff was so sure that the baby was dead they didn't even have equipment in the delivery room for the baby. And when Pam told doctors she was sure she felt the baby kick, they continued her labor to get her hopes up in her anguish, the tormented mom turned to prayer.

"I kept praying, 'Please God, let it be alive,'" Pam said. "I truly believe in miracles."

Suddenly the baby's head appeared and little Tim was born, an active, bawling baby.

The miracle birth left everyone in the delivery room stunned.

After the birth, baffled doctors checked the hospital's monitoring equipment and found it to be in perfect working order.

. . . after doctors told pregnant woman her unborn child was dead

GIANT HOROSCOPE

—By Countess Sophia Sabah

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

At work and at home, you will see yourself as the leader and the authority figure.

-Just don't get too full of yourself, or you may face problems with co-workers and family.

This time period finds you casting a critical eye on your budget, and you're inspired to refurbish your surroundings. But keep a close eye on the budget.

Romantic difficulties will melt away if you're willing to give more than you get.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

The next few weeks may prove to be a time of high emotional drama, perhaps culminating a romantic breakup of some kind.

Sound advice and consolation will be forthcoming from several directions. Look to Libra, and possibly Cancer.

Some may experience financial hardship due to unexpected expenditures, medical bills or mechanical failures. But assistance will come from an unusual source and lead to a lasting friendship.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Face up to the fact that your finances are in poor shape! Put yourself on a strict budget in order to get yourself out of the tough spot.

Don't turn down a chance to join your loved one on a romantic outing.

Some singles will find it difficult to cope with family members this week, but a resourceful friend offers a solution which should not be ignored.

An unusual energy high will help you accomplish wonders at work and in the home.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

Your physical energy is low this week, so pick up with some exercise.

Cosmic influences are partially to blame, but your unemployed approach to life has to be reconsidered also. Scheduling chores to make more constructive use of your day will leave time for the relaxation you crave.

Intuitive powers are highlighted during this period, and will help you to communicate with a loved one.

A letter will bring news of financial gain.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

Weekend revelry leaves you paid ribbon. Your good intentions, plus a resolution to lose that excess poundage, fizz out the window. Your best bet is to join one of the organizations for weight loss that offer support groups.

Leos are typically social beings, and love lots of people around, but your loved one is tired of the crowd scenes. Get away together — and alone — and you'll be glad you did.

Money matters are better and better

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Singles born under the sign of Virgo are entering a period which favors affairs of the heart.

For many, financial matters will require close attention — but investing in new businesses or signing a contract will prove risky.

Married pair find the recent peace and quiet on the home front has been the calm before the storm, so be on your guard.

The weekend will prove disruptive, thanks to in-laws and unsupervised children.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

The lunar position stumbs a spot area in your social life. A time to entertain and showcase your talents — especially to the opposite sex.

Minor frustrations with extended family members may mar the weekend, but toward the end of the week you will find the generosity of your mate will pay off in a way you never imagined.

Singles and those with partners will find romance at a social gathering.

Take time to get your sleep.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

The physically active Scorpion, whether because of a job or other situations or a love rigorous exercise program, needs an extra measure of rest and relaxation this week.

Ignore some well-intentioned advice from those who think being socially active is the cure-all.

A temporary respite which includes quiet evenings spent watching TV may do the trick.

You will be delighted this weekend when the mailman delivers a letter or money from a friend.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Sagittarius seems to have the ability to create their own luck. That's what you're doing! Your dedication and hard work are about to pay off in a big way.

However, don't be tempted to burn the midnight oil this week. Schedule long time to be spent with neglected family members will recharge your batteries for the exciting days ahead!

Take time out for an evening on the town with close friends or loved ones.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Whoop it up this week. Gather those you love around you and have a ball.

Share and sing until you're all partied out — and when the bill comes, pay it with a great big smile.

Now a word of caution. Someone wants to get involved in your love life. Watch out! It's not a good idea. You're doing just fine as you are.

A sassy, good-natured friend will brighten your life if you relax and let it happen.

Chat with elderly relatives.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Many will find their romantic emotions are on a wild roller coaster ride the next few weeks. Financial matters are a mixed bag, adding to a spending spree of frustration and irritation.

But by the end of the week the picture will change, and all signs will point to a lasting romance.

On a lighter note, coming events will bring much happiness, and will deepen and refresh your bonds with loved ones.

Be open candid with your mate.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Unusual and mysterious behavior among associates and friends become clear when new assignments or duties are posted. Keep your temper and everything will settle down.

The weekend finds you fatigued, longing for peace and quiet. But playing the hermit could be a mistake.

Socializing will help you relieve tensions and an attractive member of the opposite sex will help you unwind.

A project in the home could bring some welcome cash.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Warmth and affection highlight the coming months as your partner and family members shower you with attention.

A new person in your life will cause you lots of upset. Go about your business as usual and be steady. Your cool will earn you praise from friends and associates, and the rocky situation will calm down in just a few months.

A bizarre incident in a department store shortly before Christmas will result in a minor financial loss. But a stranger you meet there will become a close friend.

Pay attention to your health and even go so far as to cuddle yourself.

Breed's bigger, faster & a whole lot meaner . . .

New police dogs howl because they're wolves!

By ROSE GRADY

Cops in South Africa are now armed with a fearsome weapon that even the cleverest, craftiest crook can't evade or outfox — tracking dogs bred from mountain wolves!

The incredible beasts are the result of crossing a German shepherd with a wolf from the Ural Mountains in the Soviet Union and they are an awesome sight to behold.

They are larger, fiercer and far more powerful than their German shepherd forebearers. Their fangs are twice as long and it takes three grown men and a heavy chain to drag them into their cages.

The wolf dogs have five times the stamina of any other canine breed used in tracking and guard work.

Their trainers must wear special padding to protect themselves from their enormously powerful jaws.

"They have very long teeth which go right through normal padding," explained one trainer at Rooidgaan Breeding Enterprises near Pretoria, where master sleuth Peter Gerrans has developed the amazing part-dog part-wolf strain.

And unlike the German shepherd, which hates, wolf dogs love!

The first wolf dog was born in 1976. His name is Jumbo and he's still on the job at one of the best trackers and attack animals in the South African Defense Force.

In addition to working with government military and police agencies, the wolf dogs are being purchased by private security firms to replace their regular guard dogs.

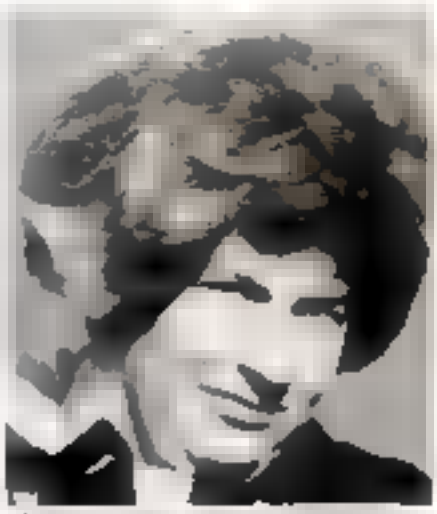
Dieter packs on 130 lbs. — 'cause she sleepwalks to the fridge!



SLEEPWALKING chowhound Belinda Smith.

Blubbery Belinda Smith gained 130 pounds even though she was on a starvation diet, but her weight gain stopped after doctors put her on a 24-hour monitor — and found she was raiding the refrigerator in her sleep!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

The 36-year-old Sydney, Australia housewife had been sleepwalking to the kitchen and chowing down on huge sweets and soft drinks. Experts believe she ate more than 2,000 calories a night while she was sound asleep.

I tried at first to believe that I would have some control while on a diet, but I was wrong," Belinda said. "Now I know why I never had much appetite at breakfast time. I'm convinced it wasn't something wrong with my metabolism. Since we got back to the refrigerator and the [illegible] no problems are cited.

Belinda said the "starvation" period — on pounds on 1,000 calories a day following the birth of her baby daughter. After the 5-foot-4 mom had ballooned from 135 pounds to 170, she went on a diet — but try as she might she couldn't lose an ounce.

Instead, she kept gaining. And gaining. And gaining.

"By 1990, I was up to 265 pounds and gaining steadily," said Belinda, who was interviewed on local television. "I'd wake up tired in the mornings and I always suffered from indigestion. I assumed that food was disappointing from the supermarket, but I thought it was my husband and the kids."

In fact, doctors discovered Belinda was starving all day and gorging at night. She would [illegible] a cracker at three. Now I know why I never had much appetite at breakfast time. I'm convinced it wasn't something wrong with my metabolism. Since we got back to the refrigerator and the [illegible] no problems are cited.

Belinda said "The monitor showed I was wrong."

Belinda's sleepwalking problem was diagnosed in July and since then she has been given sleeping pills and cautioned to lock all of her cupboards. Her weight has dropped off to 205 pounds already, doctors say.

"This was a very successful case and we're happy to have gotten to the bottom of it," said Belinda's doctor, internist Marley Thurlow.

Mom punches out son's principal

An angry mother pistol-whipped a Illinois junior high school principal in the jaw for calling police to question her son about drugs! The woman was charged with assault in the alleged altercation with Otonga High School Principal James Laydyke.

According to reports, Laydyke suspected the woman's son of selling drugs at school and called the police.

She found out about it, came to the school and popped Laydyke in the face. The alleged attack didn't get her son off the hook. He was suspended from school.

I could have been the world's greatest guitar player, says teenager

HANDY Jose Rodriguez works as a busboy at a restaurant — where he's not good at picking up empty glasses.

By JOE REAGER

Tormented teenager Jose Rodriguez figures he should've been a big league baseball hero or the world's greatest guitar picker. After all, he came equipped for stardom — with six fingers on each hand!

Or perhaps, since he has six toes on each foot, the bizarre schoolboy could have been a soccer sensation or a bigshot ballet dancer.

But heartbroken Jose, 15, says his dirt-poor parents cheated him out of his chance for fame and glory because they were ashamed of his overabundance of digits.

"They never told me all those fingers and toes could be a blessing I could use to make something of my life," the bewildered kid told reporters in Valledupar, Colombia.

"They wanted to hide me away so I wouldn't bring shame on them. When I went to school, they told me to keep my hands in my pockets when I could and never take my shoes off. I just didn't know any better back then."

HE has six toes on each foot.

Hapless Jose says when he was small, his frantic parents convinced him it was perfectly normal to have a few too many digits.

"They told me all kids were born with extra fingers and toes, but the digits normally dropped off after birth," he said. "They told me I was a late developer."

The kid called Octopus Boy by his neighbors says he

AMAZING BOY HAS 6 FINGERS ON EACH HAND

. . . and 12 toes to boot!

having half a dozen fingers on each hand could have ticketed him for greatness.

"Now people are telling me, 'You should have become a wonderful baseball player' or 'You could have been great on now it's way too late for me."

Jose says he can never achieve stardom now because he's tied down to a busboy's job, helping to support his struggling family of five.

"All I'm good for is picking rusted tins — and holding my hands up to tourists' cameras for beer money," he said sadly. "I could have been a star — but instead, I'm nothing but a freak."

Nazi madman DIDN'T die in a Berlin bunker!

HITLER

By RAGAN DUNN in Santiago

A respected anthropologist has found dramatic evidence to prove Adolf Hitler fled Germany in 1945 and has been living in Chile ever since.

The Nazi madman is said to be 100 years old and in poor health. But Dr. Leo Reiff says he is still of sound mind and will do anything to avoid capture.

Frail 100-year old Fuhrer lives in mountains of Chile with Indians who treat him like a LIVING GOD!

"Hitler is alive," Dr. Reiff, the Swiss anthropologist, told newsmen in Santiago, Chile. "For all these years everybody thought he was dead.

"But he isn't dead. He is in the mountains of Chile with Indians who revere him as a living god and would sacrifice their own lives to save his."

Dr. Reiff's proof undermined stunned reporters and historians who have long believed that thousands of Nazis fled to South America at the end of World War 2 but never suspected that Hitler was one of them.

They demanded that the scientist produce evidence to support his story. And to their surprise, he showed them the covers statements of eyewitnesses and Nazi memorabilia he recovered from the hut that Hitler allegedly lived in for the past 44 years.

The anthropologist said he stumbled on the Führer's hideout 30 miles south southwest of San Javier in the Chilean mountains on October 14.

The former German dictator had vanished by the time the anthropologist and his research team arrived in the village — apparently because he received advance warning "that white men were on their way."

"Hitler was gone but the evidence remained," Dr. Reiff told newsmen. "We recovered a battered leather trunk that contained books, maps, two Nazi uniforms and Hitler's medals.

"The village elders confirmed that the property belonged to 'Adolfo,' a foreigner who arrived at the village with a woman and an aide in June 1945.

"If you remember your history that's just a few weeks after Hitler and Eva Braun were alleged to have committed suicide in a Berlin bunker in April 1945."

According to Dr. Reiff, the Indians said two men came to the village in May 1945 and offered them a fortune in gold to care for the trio who would follow a few weeks later.

The Indians also recall that the man alleged to be Hitler, a slender blonde-haired woman thought to be Miss Braun and the aide came to Chile in an "underwater boat" — a submarine — and were escorted to the village right on schedule.

The woman died of a fever in 1964 or 1965. At the time Miss Braun would have been 62 or 63.

The aide also died in the mid-'60s but the natives don't remember how or why.

"Up until that point Hitler had had little to do with the villagers," said Dr. Reiff. "But after the deaths of his companions he became much more active in tribal affairs.

"He was especially fond of children and began to spend almost all his time with them. The Indians call him 'Doctor' because he took it upon himself to care for sick children.

"They say he would go days without sleep while nursing

The story that will rock the world!

...ELT where Hitler is said to have lived for past 46 years.

...o little since back to health ...d ask for nothing but a mug ... a kiss in return.

..."I showed them pictures of ...r and they identified him ...mediately," continued the ...gent. "He still combs his hair ... one side and wears a mus...che. But his hair is white. As ...u might imagine, they say he ...s a horribly aged and wrin...led face."

The Indians told Dr. Reiff ...at the "doctor" is frail and ...ippled and was literally ...ried out of the village to a ...eating place like a baby. They refused to say where he has been taken. In fact, they threatened to kill the anthropologist and his colleagues for asking too many questions, "because the 'doctor' said he would rather die than see another white man."

Chilean authorities have interrogated Dr. Reiff but will neither confirm nor deny reports that they are now looking for Hitler. Soviet and American officials have also spoken with the anthropologist but refuse to say what they plan to do about his allegations.

THIS incredible portrait of an aged Adolf Hitler is a computer-enhanced photo based on descriptions of the ex-Nazi leader by those who knew him.
